

Informal meeting held by the Third Committee of the United Nations General Assembly with the civil society

Last night the FIODS was present at the Informal meeting held by the Third Committee of the United Nations General Assembly with the civil society. The meeting was held in New York, at the ONU General Assembly Hall, and virtual participation was also possible. It was very interesting to take part in the meeting and to hear so many outstanding debates and reflections on important topics such as: gender equality, equality in the COVID-19 recovery and the role of the Third Committee in this process, etc. The role of civil society in this global pandemic period was, once again, key for many different countries and we hope that through the important relation and exchange with International societies and Organizations, such as ONU, there will be a sustainable and concrete development of local force and stability all over the world.
